

The Agricultural Training Programmes
Galilee International Management Institute
March 26 – April 9, 2014

Greetings from the Galilee International Management Institute,

According to the latest UN report, Israel's agriculture is characterised by high technological level, pressure irrigation systems, automatic and controlled mechanisation and high quality seeds and plants.

At the heart of the agricultural sector is the ability to wisely balance financial incentives, government regulation and free-market forces to improve the agricultural sector and make it more sustainable. In addition the unique climate of Israel has necessitated close collaboration between government institutions, scientists, farmers, and localised agricultural concerns in order to maximise the growth and sustainability of agricultural output in an area with limited natural resources.

We are proud to invite you to benefit from the Israeli experience by registering to one of the Agriculture & Environment Training Centre's (AETC) following programmes, scheduled to take place between March 26 – April 9, 2014:

Agribusiness and Post Harvesting Management
Irrigation and Intensive Crop Management programme
Livestock: Technology and Farm Management

All trainings include both theoretical and practical aspects; programmes comprise a well-balanced curriculum of lectures, study tours and workshops. Each programme will expose the participants to approaches and technologies, and Israeli experts will lecture and offer knowledge and advice that are applicable in emerging economies. Participants will also have the unique opportunity to develop an international network with colleagues from around the world, exchange views and explore burning agricultural issues.

In addition, all participants will enjoy guided tours in the weekends, exploring the most beautiful and significant historical sites in Israel including Nazareth, Jerusalem, the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea.

Scholarships: The Galilee Institute offers a limited number of Tuition Scholarships to qualified candidates. The Tuition Scholarship is given, tentative to approval by the Admission Committee and does not include the Local Expenses Fee or airfare.
