Sir,

I request that the following matter may kindly be published in your esteemed daily:

TNAU decided to Continue B.Sc (Hons.) Sericulture Course

The four years B.Sc. (Hons.) Sericulture course is being offered at the Forest College and Research Institute, Mettupalayam of Tamil Nadu Agricultural University. The Academic Council of the University was decided to suspend the course temporarily for the next two academic years due to change of campus with suitable environment for mulberry cultivation and rearing of silkworm. In the mean time, the sericulture students for the past five days protested and demanded the University to continue offer the course. The University officials led by Vice-Chancellor, TNAU and District Collector, Coimbatore had discussion with the students and the University has taken a decision to continue the B.Sc. (Hons.) Sericulture Course in the current academic year along with other degree programmes.
