TNAU conducts training programme on "Entrepreneurship development through dissemination of quality seed production technologies"

Tamil Nadu Agricultural University's Seed Centre organized a NABARD sponsored training on "Entrepreneurship development through dissemination of quality seed production technologies" from 26.07.2024 to 27.06.2024. Dr.R.Umarani, Director, Seed Centre has explained the importance and use of quality seeds in agriculture. She has emphasized the farmers to become the seed producer for the supply of quality seeds to the needy farmers.

Dr. E. Somasundaram, Director, Agribusiness Development has highlighted the benefits of seed business and entrepreneurship development. Also, he narrated the demand in organic seed and thus, the farmers can produce the organic seeds in traditional and improved varieties. Th.C.Thirumala Rao, District Development Manager, NABARD offered felicitation address and explained the role of NABARD in agriculture and rural development. He emphasized the women and unemployed youth to utilize the different training programmes conducted through NABARD for their employment. During the training programme, the scientists have explained the different technologies and demonstrated the advanced practices for seed quality enhancement to the farmers. About 30 participants from different parts of Coimbatore district were participated in the training programme. Dr. V. Manonmani, Professor and Head, Department of Seed Science and Technology welcomed the gatherings and Dr. K. Raja, Professor proposed the vote of thanks.
